The executive headmaster, Mr Bargh of Frithville Primary School made the following statement:

- A newsletter had been circulated to parents of those attending the school in regard to safeguarding children in association with console and PC games, and to take note the reasons why these are certificatory rated as it had been noted that pupils had been playing games associated for older age groups and this was reflecting on their behaviour.
- The police have been involved with school in regard to grooming. Of which this information was additionally included in the newsletter, with advice for monitoring control of the internet.
- The ITC suite had recently been refurbished, of which the staff helped in getting this done.
- School is always looking for governors

There being no further business the meeting finished at 7.17pm.
